

Your hypnotist was laughing at you, so you, irritated, stuck out your tongue at them. As you tried to withdraw it, you found that you could not. You made a confused noise, as your hypnotist laughed harder. "Awh, toy, that's so cute! I was wondering how long it would take."

You raised an eyebrow, but your hypnotist was still giggling. "I mean, it works as both a mute trigger, and it makes you look silly!" They said. A blush began to creep up your cheeks, but you made an annoyed noise, growling as much as you were able.

They managed to hold in their laughter. "Oh, honey, you can't be that mad at me, can you? I mean, you pull that face so often, I figured you wouldn't mind getting stuck like that. I just made sure that you forgot that I had given you that trigger..."

You had managed to stop blushing, and were now glaring at them. They sighed, and then snapped their fingers, as they said "Release." Your tongue was able to move again. You didn't even think, you just knew you were annoyed at them. So, you stuck your tongue out at them.
