

Ludus Magnus by Tom Cartos

Background

The house of Lunaris has trained some of the greatest gladiators of the past 50 years, a handful of them even becoming champion at the great colosseum. The Ludus is perched atop a steep cliff looking down on to the city below. The gladiators are constantly aware of the peril of a misstep, the bones of an unfortunate few look up at them from below. Perhaps however, it is those in the house above who should be a little more wary of what lies beneath them.
