

THE SCHOOL OF SORCERY

PART 04

“After the The School of Sorcery killings and bloodshed was stilled by, ironically enough, inflicting more bloodshed, things have finally calmed down. It’s back to studying for the students and for you, temp teacher, it became a permanent residence. The students were capable of charming you with the heartfelt magic of love. And kinda because you couldn’t let go of the constant stress that some student, somewhere, is a consistently bad enough sorcerer-apprentice leading him or herself to death’s door. The buggers really grew on you (and the stress of them dying keeps you awake at night).

The outdoor training grounds are an amazing place for learning practical skills needed as a sorcerer. Learn to duel other students, practice spells on target dummies or take your Broom of Flying for a spin.

It’s all fun and games until you come to the realization that the training grounds are on the high tower of a school located on a magical floating island. And the “race” tracks? Of course right above the clouds! It’s a one-way ticket to becoming splattering red dots miles below. You look at the students and smile, but inside, your veins are popping.”
