

(Warning: This story contains female muscle growth and graphic sexual content)

The Academy had summer vacations too of course, for all of its eccentricities and the specially designed system it operated with, it was not that far removed from society it failed to understand that students needed to go to the outside world still.

Of course, only those who excelled would be rewarded with vacations outside of the school grounds.

This private beach was property of the school, a small patch of land granted to them by the government to use as they saw fit. It was a lovely terrain, a crescent-moon-shaped beach with plenty of tropical trees, its golden-white sand contrasted nicely with the clear blue sea. The rushing of the waves with a seagull's call painted this place as an idyllic summer vacation. And the girls were certainly here to enjoy it.

"Yay, summertime!" Kushida Kikyō cried out in joy as she rushed toward the water, splashing clouds of sand on her path as her endowed breasts bounced, yet secured tightly in her frilly bikini.

"Ohhhh man," Ichinose Honami let out a long sigh as she sat over a blanket, refreshed by the shadow of the umbrella positioned just behind her. Her bright blue two-piece swimsuit as she removed her top and shorts. "I really needed this after all those exams..."

"You said it," Horikita Suzune agreed as she applied lotion to her limbs, she intended to soak in as many rays as she could, as evidenced by the red bikini she wore. "But were rightfully rewarded, now it's time to lay down and relax"

Not far from them, a mature beauty lay down on a recliner chair. Wearing a daring black bikini, the outstandingly pronounced hips and exceptional bosom were at full display, letting her body slowly tan nicely. Chaperoning students was not how Sae Chabashira envisioned her summer, but there were worse ways to spend her vacation time. At least she got to relax on a beautiful beach. And with only four girls to look after, she was certain things wouldn't get out of control.

Particularly when one of them preferred to be cooped up inside the house.

X~X~X~X~X

The private beach included a nicely furnished and spacious cabin that could house more than five people. It had all the amenities they could possibly need for a prolonged stay, with a private room for each of the girls for them to rest after a full day on the beach.

Arisu Sakayanagi would have preferred to spend her vacation time in school, studying and preparing her many other projects. But the school wasn't having it, she had heaps of vacation days available and they wanted her to use them, no questions asked.

She let out a soft sigh, staring out the window at her peers and chaperone who were enjoying this beach much more than she could ever hope to. Even when wearing the one-piece swimsuit underneath her clothes, she didn't really feel like going out to the beach, with all that heat and sand that would get everywhere...

Perhaps it was a byproduct of having such a less-than-active lifestyle due to her medical condition, leading her to prefer indoor activities rather than anything that would exert her.

And yet... as she stared at them, Arisu couldn't help but feel she was missing something. If only her heart would allow her to enjoy a prolonged period of time under the summer sun...

Sitting on her bed, Arisu looked at her bag filled with her belongings... and fished out one item in particular. It looked like a soda can, but it was purple and lacked any brand marks...

It had taken such a long time to develop this. All the work, all the favors she had to cash in for the Academy to give her this wonderful mixture. It wasn't enough to be the top student in the Academy, oh no, she had to prove herself worthy.

As though she hasn't already done so many times in the past. A part of her thought it was logical, they wouldn't want to give anyone any special treatment.

But another part of her, one that grew bolder and louder at the knowledge of what this can contain, despised them for holding out on her.

This frail weak little body was her prison, her heart a cruel jailor that kept her from experiencing things others took for granted. And the cure to her ailment, the key to a world of infinite possibilities lay with its liquid contents.

Even if the changes would be... drastic.

She had read the reports, seen the analysis from other test subjects, and was even invited to see the serum in action before it was distributed to the school grounds for further testing. And she had been plagued with dreams of what she had witnessed ever since.

What that woman became... so enormous, so wild and untamed, so free.

The complete opposite of this frail little thing she called Arisu. What use was there to have such a mighty brain if her body could not match her smarts?

Arisu barely realized her hands were shaking when she instinctively popped the lid open and stared at the dark hidden liquid swirling inside.

It took less than a second for her to drink the whole thing without stopping. Her eyes rolled back as the drink, the experimental serum, tasted like liquid love. So sweet and full of possibilities.

Make me stronger, she wished desperately. Make me superior like I always sought to be.

The can was soon emptied, and Arisu let out a long sigh, followed by my multiple soft pants as a small bit of purple liquid dribbled from the corner of her mouth. Her tongue peeked out to lick it, unwilling to let a single drop go to waste.

She could feel her stomach churning as the chemicals landed.

She could just transform here, in the privacy of her room, enjoy the metamorphosis in a quiet place before surprising the others with her new visage.

...But then again, the looks on everyone's faces as the process unfolded were too good to pass up.

She stood up, her cane forgotten, before stopping for a moment and looking back to her bag. An idea popped into her mind, a mere passing thought, an amusement really... but it made her smile.

